Hedgehugs

By Lucy Tapper & Steve Wilson

An illustration of two hedgehogs swinging happily on a tree branch. The tree is covered in clusters of purple flowers with red centers. The hedgehogs are grey with black spines and are smiling. The background is a soft, warm yellow and orange gradient.

Horace and Hattie are the very best of friends.

There are so many things
they like to do together.

An illustration of two hedgehogs in a meadow. They are surrounded by green four-leaf clovers, purple flowers, and various colorful butterflies. One hedgehog is holding a four-leaf clover. The background is a soft, warm yellow and orange gradient.

They like to search for four-leaved clover in the meadow.

An illustration of two hedgehogs in a field of daisies. One hedgehog is on the left, wearing a red flower crown, and the other is on the right. They are surrounded by many white daisies with yellow centers. In the background, there are green oak leaves and a small bee flying in the sky.

They like to make daisy chains in the shade of the old oak tree.

An illustration of two hedgehogs playing in a puddle. One hedgehog is on the left, wearing blue boots, and the other is on the right, wearing red boots and holding a red and white floral umbrella. They are surrounded by many small blue butterflies. The background is a light blue sky with a few bees flying.

They like to splash in puddles on the lawn.

And sometimes they like to have a tea party by the river.

When Horace is busy, Hattie puts on her tutu and dances in the bluebells.

When Hattie is busy, Horace searches for spiders in the woods.

Horace and Hattie are the very best of friends.

But there is one thing that they cannot do together.

They cannot hug.

They are just too spiky!
