

It was Christmas Eve and snow was falling,
Cow had been singing carols all morning.
Her barn was decked with tinsel and holly,
The festive season made her feel jolly.

Where were her friends?
The happy hooves bunch,
Cow found them nearby, sleeping off lunch.

'Wake up!' she yelled,
'There's no time to lose,
I can't believe you're having a snooze!'

She shook her head in disbelief.
'Let me explain,' (through gritted teeth),
'You can't be lazy, let's do things right,
Or Santa won't come down the chimney tonight.'

'Now tidy-up, make everything gleam,
Even on top of the dusty old beam.

No crumbs on the floor, no dirt can be seen,
Santa must see how good you've all been.'
